

WORKING TOGETHER FOR THE CLIENT

Facing the challenges of current economic conditions and a substantial reduction in her compensation, an executive in an international company sought our assistance to successfully modify her child support obligations through the financial problems she was facing. When during the course of our representation, an issue arose related to complex multi-jurisdictional tax issues, we were able to call on our tax attorneys to assist in addressing the problems our client was facing. The firm's breadth of areas of practice is a critical advantage to our clients and ensures that, as issues arise in a case, our clients receive the full complement of legal services they may require from the right professionals.
