Clients trust Anna's diverse experience and extensive legal knowledge. Anna has a broad range of complex commercial litigation experience including breach of contract claims, business torts, non-compete disputes, employment litigation, and commercial real estate matters in both state and federal court. She has represented clients across industries in identifying practical and strategic solutions to high-stakes matters. Anna is a seasoned litigator but seeks to resolve disputes amicably first through negotiated settlements. A client recently noted "Shulman Rogers has been an exceptional firm to work with. Anna, your dedication to never give up, face a giant and hold them accountable has been extremely beneficial for us."

Anna also focuses her practice on a broad range of employment matters throughout Maryland, the District of Columbia and Virginia, including defending employers in administrative proceedings and the defense against claims of employment discrimination, wrongful discharge, harassment, retaliation, and wage and hour claims. She utilizes a proactive and preventative approach to avoid litigation first by counseling employers so that they are in compliance with federal and state regulations. Anna also works with clients in preparing workplace policies and
