Commercial Finance Attorneys Serving Maryland, Virginia, and Washington DC

The business attorneys at Shulman Rogers have extensive experience handling commercial lending and finance transactions, working (as lender's counsel) on behalf of global, national, regional and community banks, credit unions, financial institutions, institutional and non-institutional investors, and both publicly traded and privately-held lenders, and (as borrower's counsel) on behalf of publicly traded and privately held companies, both large and small, including those providing goods and/or services to the government.

Our clients' loan transactions can range in size from under $1 million to well in excess of $500 million. Many of our attorneys, who are extremely adept at utilizing efficiencies for the "cookie-cutter" deal and, when warranted, maximizing years of experience for the more sophisticated, "hair-on-it", highly complex deal structure, are well-known in the Washington, D.C. banking community. Our practice group maintains strong relationships with various sources of financing for companies looking to obtain financing, loans and credit facilities, whether it be for working capital and general corporate purposes, acquisition needs or growth/expansion. Aside from traditional bilateral loans and more sophisticated syndicated credit facilities, our practice group also handles virtually all types of asset based lending transactions, including without limitation, loans to government contractors (i.e., involving the financing of government contracts and government contract account receivables, as well as counseling clients on the Assignment of Claims Act).

While the attorneys of the Commercial Finance practice may not have "written the book" on commercial lending and finance, they regularly author, revamp, enhance and supplement "shelf" loan documents utilized internally by national, regional and local banks and other lenders.
