Government Investigations Attorneys in Maryland, Virginia and Washington DC

The Shulman Rogers team has guided clients to successful conclusions in hundreds of matters. We have represented individuals and companies in government investigations and civil and criminal litigation involving the SEC, FINRA, the DOJ, the PCAOB and other regulatory and criminal authorities. We have the skill, experience and temperament to resolve serious issues, often without recourse to expensive litigation. When intensive litigation is the best approach, we custom-tailor the best defense — and sustain that defense to a final resolution.

Our senior lawyers have experience as federal prosecutors and regulators. We understand the politics, policies, strategies and tactics of the SEC, the DOJ, PCAOB, FINRA, DoD, CFTC, FTC, and other authorities. Regulators and prosecutors know that we will litigate when the situation demands. Corporate boards of directors and officers trust our judgment and recommendations in conducting internal corporate investigations, and appreciate that we defend investigations strategically and, when necessary, litigate – aggressively and effectively.

Our team takes challenging facts, advocates aggressively and secures favorable outcomes – cost-effectively. We consistently resolve matters involving allegations of insider trading, FCPA violations, financial and accounting fraud, FDA violations, bribery, extortion and government contract matters, including investigations, export controls, False Claims Act defenses, Inspector General inquiries, whistleblower protection, and suspension and debarment proceedings. We successfully defend parties in white-collar criminal investigations by federal and state authorities, and civil and regulatory investigations by securities regulators, stock exchanges and capital markets self-regulatory organizations.
